

Introduction and Conclusion to DVD Second Chances, Quito Ecuador

Introduction

Nestled into the side of the hill in the north of Quito, is a property with several white buildings on it. Quaint, scenic, lush, and full of potential, Casa Blanca is the hub of the National Women's Ministry 2009-2010 project: Second Chances, Quito, Ecuador.

Our International Workers, Rich and Lisa Brown have founded the organization, Inca Link. The board of Inca Link is made up of church leaders from all over Quito. Inca Link was born out of a passion to reach the youth of Latin America with the hope of the gospel of Jesus Christ. Just over a year ago God used a dream to confirm the Casa Blanca property was to be purchased. Inca Link, Quito, took a huge step of faith. By the end of the first year, through generous giving and hard work, the initial payment was made. The keys were released to the board of Inca Link. Now ministry opportunities are unfolding.

God is up to something and we have the opportunity to join Him. Watch this video presentation and consider how you might join in what God is already doing and give women in Quito Ecuador second chances.

Conclusion

Our International Worker, Rich Brown, says, "Jesus says in Matthew 25, that, if we help the least of these then we are helping Him. We are helping Jesus. I like to say that Matthew 25 is Jesus in his disguises. He's with the poor. He's with the hurting. He's with the pregnant teens. He's with those who are in prison. And all we want to do here is help the people that are in the most difficult situations and the neediest people."
